CORPORATE GIVING COLLECTIVE

At Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service, we know that partnership with our colleagues in the private sector is truly transformative—not just for the refugees and immigrants who benefit from the support, but for our corporate partners, too. That's why we established the Corporate Giving Collective (CGC), an innovative program that goes beyond philanthropy and invites our partners to immerse themselves in the work of welcome through education, volunteer opportunities, and collaborative storytelling. Through the CGC, we are proud to provide an answer to that oft-asked question: How can we get more involved?

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO BE A PART OF THE LIRS CORPORATE GIVING COLLECTIVE?

The Corporate Giving Collective is open to all corporations currently supporting LIRS with commitments of $50,000 and above. In addition to their critical support of our New American neighbors, CGC members are eligible for employee engagement opportunities with LIRS, real-time insights into contemporary immigration issues and innovations in services, and public-facing assets that demonstrate corporate social responsibility.

CORPORATE GIVING COLLECTIVE MEMBERS CAN SUPPORT PROJECTS SUCH AS:

	New American Cities , a career upskilling and economic empowerment program that connects refugees and immigrants to training, certification, and other services to support meaningful employment.
	Welcome Center programming , which provides trauma-informed case management for asylum seekers including connection to legal services, mental health screening, education services, and emergency assistance.
	Mental Health Services for uninsured immigrant children and families, as well as peer support groups for Afghan evacuees, victims of family separation, and more.
	New American Community Lending , which financially empowers clients through the provision of individual, consumer, and microenterprise loans to promote stability, security, and a share in the American Dream.
	Emergency Response , such as temporary housing, financial assistance, and transportation for recently arrived refugees.
